Developments in Diversity & Inclusion in Asia

Excerpt from: Community Business, 2016. Building the Business Case for Diversity & Inclusion: Stories from Asia.

In the last decade, the subject of diversity and inclusion has attracted increasing attention from the corporate sector. With untapped opportunities, Asia represents a strategic growth market, and a growing number of companies recognise the importance of diversity and inclusion – not only as a talent management strategy but also as a source of competitive advantage. They know they need access to diverse talent not only to realise their ambitions in the region but also to reflect the needs of the Asian markets they are seeking to serve.

Keen to compete on the global stage, and exposed to global influences and practices, leading local organisations are also being forced to up their game when it comes to promoting equitable and fair workplaces and harnessing the contribution of all to drive business success. At the same time, complex and changing dynamics across the Asia region, most notably the ageing population, globalisation and the shortage of talent, are providing the impetus for governments and business communities across Asia to put diversity and inclusion on the political, social and corporate agenda.

Yet Asia is a huge and complex market. It is not one entity, but is made of many countries and many cultures with a broad range of issues that can impact organisational performance – both internally and externally. Such complexities highlight the need to adopt an Asian perspective to diversity and inclusion.

Community Business' leading Diversity & Inclusion in Asia Network (DIAN) provides a critical forum for companies committed to understanding the issues and driving their strategies forward.
